

ABFSE Professional Development.

Today's students are tomorrow's funeral directors. Leili McMurrough has been sharing a presentation about millennial employees with FD's around the country. This is an opportunity for ABFSE colleagues to hear the message too.

The workforce is changing fast. The millennial employee is challenging the way funeral professionals are hired and managed. This discussion looks at ways to effectively communicate with and integrate the millennial funeral director into the workplace. These same topics have application in funeral service education.

Learning Objectives: • Describe the characteristics of the millennial generation • Discuss management methods that can be utilized to facilitate a successful work environment. • Explore what this generation feels is important in a job and what they expect from their employers • Discuss hiring best practices for the millennial employee.

Educators might enjoy knowing they are not alone when the funeral home calls and asks what is going on over at the college and why they can't find or keep those younger employees.
