

Samantha Bullock was born and raised in small town Booneville, Mississippi. Currently, she is a Funeral Service apprentice at Cutshall Funeral Home in Iuka, Mississippi and a waitress at a restaurant in her hometown. If she's not working or at school, you can find her crocheting, nature watching, or spending time with her fiancé.

Since middle school, she has wanted to pursue a career in Funeral Service, but never knew where to even begin. She started higher education at Northeast Mississippi Community College where she received her Associates Degree of Arts in General Education. After graduation, she was accepted to Northwest Mississippi Community College and began the journey to becoming a Funeral Director/Embalmer in August of 2020. While it hasn't been easy working and commuting across the state for class, it's been incredibly rewarding in not only knowledge but also friendships and opportunities. With the generous help of the ABFSE, she is able to continue working towards her degree.

While it is only the first step to becoming licensed, she looks forward to one day being able to serve her community and is incredibly grateful for the opportunity to be able to do so!
